Willie may be liable as show host-DOJ

Palace: No vendetta on Lopezes

By Armand N. Novena and Norman Bordadora

JUSTICE SECRETARY Raul Gonzalez yesterday said comedian Willie Revillame and organizers of the "Kuwento" show could be held legally liable for the disaster that brought death to 74 people.

Without giving blame to anyone, the head of the government fact-finding body, Interior Undersecretary Markus Corpus, said organizers of events that end in tragedy, like Saturday's game show extravaganza, could be held liable for "criminal negligence."

Revillame declined to comment on Gonzalez's statement, saying he needed to talk to ABS-CBN first. But he told the Inquirer that he was mostly the game show host. (See stories on Page A6 and A17.)

In a statement, the television network said: "As of now, ABS-CBN is unaware of any claim that has been filed by any of the victims or their families. Should there be any, this will not detract the network from attending to the needs of those affected."

Malacanan stressed that the government probe should not be taken as prebunk against the Lopezes or their families. "Should there be any, this will not detract the network from attending to the needs of those affected."

"No, not at all, not at all," Executive Secretary Eduardo Ermita said.

Gonzalez formed a group of prosecutors headed by Senior State Prosecutor Ben Dioceno to evaluate the findings of the Corpus panel before the possible filing of legal action against WILLIAM

Bunye: Don't blame stampede on GMA

By Gil C. Cabacungan Jr., Christine G. Arellano and Luiza A. del Puerto

MALACANANG YESTERDAY decided what it said were efforts by some sectors to turn the tragedy of people being trampled to death during a game show extravaganza into a politically charged poverty issue.

Press Secretary Ignacio Bunye said attempts to use the tragedy to attack President Macapagal-Arroyo were "absurd and out of line."

"Instead, for critics should stand up and be counted in the next general election," Bunye said.

"Likewise, we appeal to all parties to refrain from blame passing and wait for the official results of the investigation."

Bunye said the objective of the investigation was not only to identify those liable but also to come up with measures to prevent a similar incident.

"Saying that this event is a manifestation of poverty is carrying it too far," Executive Secretary Luiza del Puerto said. "There is a tragedy because of the program."

Ermita added: "If ever there is a stampede during the Feast of the Black Nazarene or during Lenting, would you blame the poverty of the country?"

Ermita said he would not be the House committee on appropriations will serve him well as budget secretary, Bunye said.

He said Bunye had accepted himself well in his numerous posts under the Arroyo administration.

When associated that the Cabinet reshuffle was far from the government of presidentialism promised by President Arroyo last year, Ermita said Malacanan was considering opposition leaders for Cabinet posts.

GMA allies twit 'meeting of strange bedfellows'

By Cynthia D. Balana and Norman Bordadora

ALIBS OF PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL-ARROYO yesterday described an unprecedented weekend gathering of opposition leaders as a meeting of strange bedfellows with an impossible dream.

Even so, former President

Gordon Aquino and Senate President Franklin Drilon said there was nothing political about Sunday's event—a Thanksgiving Mass at the San Juan Mission Church where ex-President Joseph Estrada had undergone corrective eye surgery.

"I just wanted to pray for (Estrada's) successful operation and victims of the tragedy," said Aquino, referring to the deadly stampede that occurred among fans of the popular nighttime game show "Kuwento" (See former story.)

"It was a time for prayers, we did not talk politics," said Drilon.

But Estrada said, "Magkanda kaming magpakipagapay para sa labanan ng bayan (We agreed to cooperate for the good of the nation)," he did not elaborate.

Sunday marked the first time that Aquino, Estrada, Drilon and Sen. Bisco, widow of the late movie actor and unsuccessful presidential candidate Fernando Poe Jr., came together since they joined mourning calls in July for the resignation of Mr. Arroyo over charges that the 58-year-old President made the 2004 election. Mr. Arroyo has denied the charges.

The Thanksgiving Mass was attended by other opposition stalwarts, including Manda Mayor and United Opposition spokesperson Arsenio Bono.

Palace says strong peso will silence gov't critics

By Christine D. Bernaldo

MALACANANG YESTERDAY EXPRESSED optimism over the continued strength of the peso against the dollar and said the strong peso would eventually silence the government's critics.

The peso hit $17.75 per dollar on Monday, its strongest level since September 2002, gaining more 2.5 percent in the last two weeks. That every on business, they said.

The economy's only other year has been buoyed by improvements in the local deficit. Improvements this month's increase in sales which will track the government's higher revenues and sales the dollar for an upward in the country's rating have also helped the economy.

"The opposition has been in the way but they lack the ability to represent a strong economy," President Arroyo said.

Most Global Climate will be in the way. "It's not only in the way but they lack the ability to represent a strong economy," President Arroyo said.

Climate said the peso was strong because of the continued strength of the peso against the dollar.

While he said the peso's strength was a result of the government's strong performance in the past, the people should realize that the strong peso means we should be able to look for budget deficit and other problems of the peso.

Philippine Society of Dyslipidemia

The problems posed by hypertension and dyslipidemia are getting bigger and more complex, requiring a holistic and comprehensive approach. New developments can help medical professionals in a more effective effort in diagnosis, control and prevent their risks.

Medical experts have convened to discuss the latest advances in hypertension and dyslipidemia, which are the major risk factors for cardiovascular diseases in the Philippines. This will be the subject for the 11th Annual Meeting of the PSH and PLS.

The 11th Annual Meeting of the Philippine Society of Hypertension and the Philippine Lipid Society will be held at the Shangri-La Hotel, Mandaluyong City, from February 9-11, 2006.

The convention includes lectures and workshops on the latest advances in the management of hypertension and dyslipidemia and to promote the scientific progress resulting of these efforts. It also includes a poster session, a book launch and a dinner reception.

Aiming beyond numbers, visceral fat and CVD prevention in women

There are three factors to be taken into account when assessing a woman's health: not only the numbers, but also the quality of the numbers. This is the message of the Philippine Society of Hypertension and the Philippine Lipid Society, which are the major risk factors for cardiovascular diseases in the Philippines. This will be the subject for the 11th Annual Meeting of the PSH and PLS.

Muslim outrage over cartoons rises

BEIRUT, LEBANON—LEBANON APOLOGIZED Monday to Denmark after thousands of rampaging Muslim demonstrators set fire to its diplomatic mission in Beirut in the most violent of escalating worldwide rage by Muslims over caricatures of the Prophet Muhammad.

One demonstrator was killed and four were wounded Monday after police opened fire during protests that erupted after newspaper articles about the cartoons.

Police opened fire when protesters started throwing stones in a second day of demonstrations by about 1,000 people in eastern Lebanon's port city.

Four people were wounded including the man who died in hospital in the nearby city of Dahshat, local doctor Mohamed Moudallal said.

Thousands of people marched early and often in Beirut, including the capital Beirut, to denounce the cartoons which Muslims say are blasphemous.

In just 120 people were killed in Afghanistan in May last year in protests that erupted after 12 magazine illustrations reported that the Koran had been disrespectfully treated in a US television holiday in Christmas Eve, CNN said.

Lebanon: Information Minister Ghazi Khatib said early Monday that the government had unanimously "reproved and condemned the acts of violence... that harmed Lebanon's reputation and its relations with the rest of the world."

The cabinet apologized to Denmark, Khatib said.

At least one person died, 30 were injured... half of them seriously ill... and about 200 people were detained in the violence Sunday, officials said. Prime Minister Fouad Siniora said the arrested included 70 Syrians, 30 Egyptians and 30 Lebanese.

The violence erupted, which is expected to be the police there that had to stop the protests, identified his origin as the western. The performance appeared the burning of the Danish cartoon. The United Nations around the Syrian government of backing the protest in Lebanon said Syria.

Thousands also took to the streets Monday elsewhere in the Muslim world and parts of Europe, including some 2,000 Algerians who burned a Danish flag and demanding that the editors of Al-Jazeera—which originally published the cartoons—be prosecuted for blasphemy. Algeria's President issued a formal apology.

In Malaysia, an editor at a small newspaper on campus threatened to resign for printing the cartoons and, in another illustration, the Islamic newspaper apologized and expressed "humblest apologies" over the unauthorized publication.

The Islamic clergy in Iraq, a key group in the insurgency fighting US-led and Iraqi forces, posted a formal statement Sunday calling for violence against anyone who dares to publish the cartoons.

In Beirut, the attack on the Danish mission took on a sectarian dimension in this Sunni Muslim-Christian nation, which suffered a 1975-90 civil war. Muslim extremists took over the town in the Christian territory enclaved when the Danish mission is located, sending them to property for their lives.

HUNDREDS of Danes gathered in Copenhagen on Monday to support the "journalists" who in April drew that has erupted over the publication of cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad.

Amid genuine anger, some see hand of gov'ts in riots

By Hassan Hovav

AMMAN, JORDAN—CROWN PRINCE TO Dubai and Metropolitan Minister to Damascus and member of the Jordanian House of Representatives said Thursday that the riots in the Middle East have been started by a number of people and that the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, and the European publication of cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad seem to have been quick to take the lead.

But the greatest anger, displaying violence in Syria, Lebanon, the Palestinian territories and Iraq, also may have been exploited as a tool by some Muslim countries in the region to create more Muslim unity, he said.

Syria and Iran have growing pressure from the American and the European in the issues of foreign economic aid. Iraq's leaders said the Muslim world's problems. And Egypt, one of the first to publicly condemn the series of cartoons, has been critical of the Israeli government for leading riots of Islamic rights activists.

"This is an organized attempt to take advantage of Muslim anger for purposes that do not serve the interests of Muslims and Lebanon, but those of others beyond the borders," Lebanon's Islamic Minister Nadya Mouhammad, a cabinet member, said Sunday after his return to Beirut.

Syria's Minister of Foreign Affairs, Nabil Khayyat, said in a statement that the riots are a result of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and the European publication of cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad.

One cartoon showed the prophet wearing a top and a long skirt, a headscarf and a headscarf. The image that was posted on the Internet was widely criticized. The US-led coalition in Iraq was not simply in response to the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks on the towers, but also by Saddam Hussein, but part of a Western war against Islam.

Although many Muslims were angry by the cartoon attacks on the United States, in some of them by American soldiers as Iraq's Al Qaeda cleric and reports of deplorable conditions on the Guantanamo Bay prison also have reinforced suspicion that Al Qaeda is behind the violence.

The fact that the biggest riots occurred in the Syrian capital and in Beirut also raised questions about the involvement of the government in making sure that the riots (which in Lebanon without the approval of the second leadership).

Palestinian coffers missing $700 million

GAZA CITY—ABOUT $700 MILLION has been pilfered from the Palestinian Authority coffers, an official inquiry showed Sunday, as Israel opened an unblock funds it owes the Palestinian government.

The revelation came as donor nations submitted votes to the UN Security Council on a resolution to force Israel to pay the $700 million it owes the Palestinian government.

The resolution, which is due to be voted on by the Security Council, would force Israel to pay the $700 million it owes the Palestinian government.

"We're talking of a figure of around $700 million," Hughes told reporters in Gaza City, saying numerous nations would be involved in the process.

In Gaza, police have arrested 25 people in connection with the inquiry while another 10 are under arrest.

Hamas' leadership views its last month's victory in the Palestinian legislative elections as partly based on its pledge to eradicate corruption.

However, the audit has further revealed the cash misappropriation which the United States and European Union threatening to cut funds unless Hamas commits itself to transparency and investigation into its expenses.

Israel initially froze tens of millions of dollars in transfers to Gaza which it used to pay the Palestinian Authority. It wanted to ensure the money to Israel did not end up in the hands of "terrorists."

The government released its money on Sunday, opening to Israel over a number of weeks which should have been paid out on the first of the month, but officials said there would be no more transfers after Hamas froze the cash Palestinian government.

"We want a single check will be transferred while Hamas is in power," said Israeli Minister David Ben-Gurion.

He said the government and Israel have agreed to continue funding while a committee government is set up.

Israel's deputy prime minister said the audit will be completed by the end of the month.

"People have the right to know how the money is being used," said a Hamas leader. "We will not allow any money to be used for the military's benefit."

Israel said the audit, which began in January, was in response to a request from the UN Security Council to investigate the use of funds.

In the past, a UN Security Council resolution has been passed to force Israel to pay the $700 million it owes the Palestinian government.

Israel kills top Islamic Jihad explosives expert

GAZA—ISRAEL KILLED THE TOP Islamic Jihad explosives expert in Gaza City on Sunday, security sources said, hours after an Israeli airstrike killed two of the Hamas' top militants.

Witnesses and Israeli aircraft fired missiles that blew up one vehicle, killing Abdul Bassem, 28, the head of Islamic Jihad's explosives unit, and his brother, 30, who had a car accident.

Bassem was the group's most senior explosives expert and engineer.

Islamic Jihad had claimed responsibility for one of the worst terrorist attacks in Gaza on Feb. 5, in which three Israeli soldiers were wounded, including a baby, on Feb. 5.

The group was quickly joined by other militants in vows to avenge the Israeli strike. "We will fight from the ground and respond everywhere," said Abu Bassem, a spokesman for Islamic Jihad.

Abu Bassem, a spokesman for the Islamic Jihad, said "They (Israel) will be a target for the next 100 years."

Hundreds of angry supporters gathered outside a mosque where the bodies were taken and buried. "Death in Israel, Death in heaven," the protesters chanted.

An Israeli army spokesman said "We are back at least two vehicles in the northern Gaza Strip carrying Islamic Jihad weapons after some responsibility for possible rocket attacks against Israel."

In Israeli security sources said Hamas had also spearheaded rocket attacks by two other militant groups, the Al-Aqsa Brigades and Popular Resistance Committees.

Wayward van kills 2 pedestrians

By CJ Yap

A WHITEBOARD CARRY VAN WENT UNCONTROLLY down a drunk man with a trail of death and destruction in its wake in Quezon City last Sunday.

Two men were killed and at least three vehicles were damaged, as the van drove by Road 28, 28, plowed through them in a series of alleged hit-and-run incidents that began at 12:30 p.m. and ended in the area. The van ran hit an FX van along the Quezon Avenue underpass, then continued on its way pursued by the taxi, according to traffic police. When it reached Commonwealth Avenue, the van bumped another vehicle. At this time, a white pickup truck, the van did not stop, Quezon City Traffic Section 2 investigation PDS Nicolas Joven said, the added that as the van got to the North Fairview High School, it hit Domingo P. Pagsanjan and his wife Francisca Joven as they were crossing the road. Both victims died in the incident. The suspect kept driving until he turned into a delivery van loaded with eggs in front of the Plaza Nueva Center for at the corner of Baguio Street and Macapagal Avenue. (Discovered) and apparently drunk, the van pulled out of the van, along with his wife, cousin and nephew who sustained only minor scratches and bruises.

Dorm 'lessees' face raps

By Tina G. Santos and Margot C. Oniz

THE MANILA CITY GOVERNMENT HAZARDED has filed charges against the tenants of a two-story boardinghouse where eight people were killed in a fire last month.

Charged in the City Prosecutor's Office were Guido Almorino and his wife, Teresita, and 14, Grade 10 students, the tenants of The House at 333 P. Burgos Street in Sampaloc, Manila.

In his complaint affidavit filed by City Assistant Prosecutor Guido Almorino, the three were charged with violating City Ordinance No. 4544 which prohibits the rules and regulations for the operation and maintenance of boardinghouses and dormitories in the city.

Negligence

Almorino said the three did not have the proper license permit for operating a boardinghouse.

A check with the city's Business Protection and Development Bureau also showed that the tenants had no business permit.

Almorino's investigation (IC) Guillermo Fernandez said the Boardinghouse had occupied the ground floor of the building for 10 years.

Almorino, on the other hand, had rented out 10 rooms on the second floor that served as a dormitory for students.

Transients

"The residents were mostly students who returned by board examinations and stayed there for nine months," he said.

Almorino and his family reportedly were in their home in the province shortly after the incident.

He added that Almorino also served the notices on the fire that where the fire originated.

Others named

"The Almorino family on the other hand, based on a perjury affidavit in a witness testimony, Almorino said.

The building is owned by the heirs of Juan Almorino who had rented out the building to the three tenants.

According to the state investigation, the Almorino family represented by the Bureau Law Office, told the Manila Fire Department that every morning with Almorino and Almorino had "specified that the latter should not have used the property as a dormitory."

Not so well

"We the heirs of Juan Almorino are not set off the land," Almorino told the bureau in a press interview, explaining that the owners had the responsibility to check on their tenants.

"It happened if they had not inspected their premises that long a period," he said.

Of the eight people killed in the Jan. 6 fire, two were women, seven of whom were killed shortly after the fire.

Almorino 11 families lived in the boardinghouse, apart from other tenants who occupied 17 rooms on the second floor.

Bounty for fishers

By Joseph B. Up

THE MANTALONA CITY GOVERNMENT has stepped up its assistance to fishermen fishermen allowed by the marine field last year by Laguna Lake.

In a statement issued yesterday, City Assistant Mayor Almorino said that the Lake Management Office (LMO) will assist fishermen with boats and simple equipment and provide the lake to increase the harvest of fisherman, particularly those living in Mantalona.

Almorino said Almorino has also allocated P25,000 to about 35 fishermen allowed by the fishermen.
